REPORT
OF THE
COMPTROLLER OF THE TREASURY
OF THE
STATE OF MARYLAND.

COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE, TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
ANNAPOLIS, MD., January 2d, 1888.

To the Honorable

The General Assembly of Maryland:

I respectfully submit to you my fourth annual report of the financial condition of the State, giving in detail the operations of the Treasury Department for the fiscal year, ending on the 30th day of September, 1887.

RECEIPTS.

The receipts for the fiscal year ending 30th September, 1887, amounted to $2,440,363.53, which, added to the balance in the treasury on September 30th, 1886, makes the total amount which has been in the treasury proper during the year to be the sum of $3,056,939.87.

Of the amount so received during the year, the sum of $463,373.00 was received on account of "the Exchange Loan of 1886." After deducting this last-mentioned sum, it will be seen that the ordinary receipts for the year were $1,976,990.53.

While this amount is about $18,000.00 less than the receipts for the year 1886, the difference is more than accounted for by the reduction in the cost of marriage licenses from $4.00 to 50 cents. The amount received in 1886 from this source was $24,226.98; the amount received from marriage licenses during the past year amounted to only $4,491.86.

There was a falling off also in the receipts from the tax on collateral inheritances, and commissions of executors and administrators, when compared with the fiscal year 1886, amounting to $31,617.81.

The tax arising from these last-mentioned sources frequently amounts to nearly $200,000.00; the receipts from those sources for the year just closed were only $96,452.11.

When we take these matters which I have just mentioned into consideration, the receipts of the treasury for the fiscal year 1887, are above the average, and only in a few instances during the past ten years have they been excelled.

DISBURSEMENTS.

The disbursements for the fiscal year ending 30th September, 1887, as shown by Statement B, amounted to the sum of $2,374,916.67.

Of this amount, the sum of $329,744.00 was expended in the redemption of State stock. The sum of $301,826.87, was transferred from the treasury for the purchase of stock for the sinking fund. The further sum of $34,069.36 surplus revenue was transferred to the Free School Fund, and the sum of $20,313.40 was expended in enlarging the State House. Deducting these items, it will be seen that the ordinary expenses of the government for the fiscal year ending on the 30th September, 1887, were $1,689,063.04.

This is a small increase over expenses of the two previous years. It was occasioned by the increase in appropriations by the Legislature, amounting in the aggregate to nearly one hundred thousand dollars.

The ordinary disbursements for the fiscal year 1886 were $1,640,943.01. If the expenditures of the State for the fiscal year just closed are compared with those of 1886, omitting the additions which the Legislature of 1886 made to the appropriations for the various charitable institutions of the State, which are not included in the expenses for said last named year. the ordinary expenses of the State government for the fiscal year just closed, are nearly forty thousand dollars less than they were for the fiscal year 1886. Such a comparison shows, that the expenses of our State, aside from the appropriations made by the Legislature to the cause of charity have not increased, but on the contrary have been reduced, when compared with the expenditures of the fiscal year 1886. I mention these facts that you may see at a glance, not only that the ordinary expenses of the government vary but little, comparing one year with another, but that an economical or extravagant administration of public affairs depends almost entirely upon the pleasure of the Legislature.

ESTIMATES.

The probable receipts for the fiscal year 1888, as shown by statement C, of the appendix, amount to $1,933,648.34.

This estimate does not include any probable receipts from the Susquehanna and Tide-water Canal Companies of which I speak elsewhere. Should they make payment the receipts for 1888 would be very probably over two millions of dollars. But omitting this item we will have in the treasury—if our estimates be correct—with the balance on hand 30th September, 1887, for the use of the State during the fiscal year 1888, the sum of $2,615,671.54.

Statement D, shows in detail that the probable disbursements for same period will amount to $1,770,851.40, which, if correct, will leave a balance in the treasury 30th September, 1888, of $844,820.14.

FREE SCHOOL FUND.

The receipts on account of the Free School Fund for the fiscal year 1887, amounted to $68,434.57 which, added to the balance on 30th September, 1886, makes the total sum of $76,313.38. The disbursements on account of this fund for the year, amount to $67,476.57. Statement E, gives in detail the sources from which this fund was received, and how the fund was disbursed.

SINKING FUNDS.

Statement E, gives also in detail the receipts as well as the investments, on account of the sinking funds during the fiscal year, 1887. There was received during the fiscal year, 1887, from investments made on account of the various sinking funds the sum of $95,298.85, and there was transferred from the treasury proper for the purchase of stock on account of the sinking fund for the redemption of the Treasury Relief Loan the sum of $25,200.00, and for the redemption of the Defence Redemption Loan the sum of $276,626.87, making altogether the sum of $397,125.72; this last mentioned sum was invested in city stocks and State bonds, and the same were placed to the credit of the various funds according to the amount to which each fund was entitled.

Statement F, gives in detail the whole amount of the sinking funds of the State. The amount, nature and rate of interest of the securities which stand to the credit of each fund.

The sinking funds now amount to the sum of $2,144,215.90.

DIVIDENDS.

Statement G, gives the dividends received during the fiscal year, 1887, from various stocks held by the State to be the sum of $213,134.54, and shows an increase over the receipts of 1886 from this source by the sum of $4,200.00.

THE OYSTER FUND.

The receipts on account of the "Oyster Fund," during the fiscal year 1887, were $54,961.73, while the disbursements for the same period amounted to $67,221.88.

This is $6,067.98 less than the disbursements for the year 1886. As the treasury owed the fund at the beginning of the fiscal year the sum of $141,964.08, the deficiency in the receipts to meet the current disbursements for the year, cannot therefore be considered, a burden upon the taxable property of the State.

The service, I believe, is in good condition, and is administered efficiently and economically. The expenditures within the control of the Commander have been reduced from $14,399.09 in 1885, to $9,076.45, for the fiscal year just ended. There remained a balance to the credit of the Oyster Fund, on the 30th day of September, 1887, of $129,703.93.

STATE'S CAPITAL AND CREDITS.

The State's capital and credits are given in detail in Statement I, and are divided into two parts—

1st. Productive.—In this we have put all the stocks, bonds and other securities held by the State, outside of State bonds, in the sinking funds, upon which interest or dividends are paid, and also all moneys owing the State by clerks of courts, collectors, incorporated institutions, &c., amounting in all to the sum of $5,638,310.68.

2d. Unproductive.—And in this we have placed the interest which the State has in the canals and the railroads of the State, and other securities from which we do not receive any interest or dividends, and amounting altogether, to the sum of $33,907,091.86. A large portion of this last mentioned sum, is represented by—

THE CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO CANAL.

The State's claim against this canal, on the 30th day of September, 1887, amounted to the sum of $25,574,713.55. Of this sum $7,000,000 is principal, and the balance, $18,574,713.55, is for interest.

This work, it is said, is in danger of being sold under the lien created by authority of the Act of 1878, Chap. 58.

Under this law, the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company has issued bonds to the amount of $500,000.00, and the money has been spent in repairs on the canal.

Three successive defaults in the payment of interest by the canal company, entitle the holders of a majority of these bonds, to the right to institute foreclosure proceedings. In this event the whole lien of the State in the canal might be sacrificed. This should not be allowed if it is possible to prevent it. Foreclosure could easily be avoided, by the passage of an act of assembly authorizing the treasury officers to invest the moneys, belonging to the sinking fund in these bonds, until a majority shall have been purchased. These bonds are a first lien on the canal, and are as good as the State's own bond, besides in doing this the State would be protecting its own property rights from loss and injury.

The Act of 1884, Chap. 383, confers upon the treasury officers the power to invest the moneys, set apart to the credit of the various sinking funds of the State, in productive stocks or bonds other than those of the State. But as these bonds, in the present condition of the canal, could not be classed as productive, the treasury officers, in the absence of any express authority upon the subject, would not probably purchase them for the sinking funds. That the interest on these bonds will be ultimately paid, cannot be doubted.

New York State has long since, I understand, recognized the impossibility of toll-paying canals competing with railroads, and has made its canals free by supporting them from its treasury.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Canal benefits the people of the whole State, in the influence which it exercises upon freights on coal, thereby reducing the price of that commodity.

In order to prevent a forced sale of the canal and a sacrifice, perhaps, of the State's interest, it will only be necessary for the State to invest in the manner I have indicated, two hundred and fifty-one thousand dollars, in order to give it absolute control of any foreclosure proceedings which could possibly arise under these bonds. There is another question worthy of consideration.

There are other bondholders, who have a lien upon the tolls of the canal. In the present condition of the canal, these bonds possess but little, if any, value. But were a sale of the canal effected, the question would at once be raised, what is the status of these bonds? The principal of these bonds amount to some $1,700,000.00, and about as much more is due for interest. The State's claim, as I have shown, principal and interest, is over twenty-five millions of dollars.

The whole bonded indebtedness of the canal should be adjusted, so that in case an offer for purchase of the canal should be made, the treasury officers would know exactly how much, in a given sum, the State would receive for its interest. As these matters now stand, it would be difficult to determine, in the event of a sale, what share of the proceeds the holders of the lien upon the tolls would be entitled to. In a word, if the canal is to be maintained, it should be reorganized. I submit these questions to you for your consideration.

Another considerable part, of the unproductive capital of the State, is represented by the lien against

THE SUSQUEHANNA AND TIDEWATER CANALS.

The State holds mortgages on these canals, to the amount of one million of dollars.

These mortgages have been over-due since the first day of January, 1884, and the interest on them has not been paid, since the first day of July, 1879.

To collect this interest and to place these mortgages among the State's productive investments, has been my hope and aim. In the past four years I have devoted much time and attention to this subject, and in order to hasten the end I had in view, the Legislature at its last session, conferred upon the Comptroller the authority to adjust and settle the arrearages due on these mortgages, either by receiving payment for the whole interest due, or in part, and if in part, the settlement to be approved by the Board of Public Works, and it also authorized the Board of Public Works to renew the over-due mortgages at such reduced rate of interest, as in their judgment, would best subserve the interest of the State.

Repeated conferences, between this department and the representatives of said canals and their lessee, the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, have taken place in Baltimore and elsewhere, before and since the passage of the Act above referred to, yet, owing to the embarrassed financial condition of said railroad company, no settlement could be effected, and it was not until within the past few weeks, that anything of a definite character, on the part of said railroad company was proposed.

The financial condition of the railroad company, under the management of its receivers, has recently improved. Reorganization, we are told, is assured, and the railroad company's ability, under such circumstances, to pay a portion of these arrearages at least, can hardly be questioned. Indeed, the railroad company now expresses a readiness, to adjust the arrearages which it owes the canal companies as lessee of said canals. While it would be very gratifying to me after my effort to effect a settlement, to exercise the authority conferred in and by the Act of Assembly hereinbefore referred to, but in as much as the said railroad company does not propose to pay the arrearages in full, nor is it willing to agree that the mortgages shall be renewed, at the rate of six per cent. interest per annum, but insists that the interest for the future shall be greatly reduced: I have concluded that as the Legislature is now in session, to refer back to your honorable bodies the question of settlement, between the State and the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, that you may determine what shall be the terms and basis of that settlement.

Some propositions of settlement will doubtless be made, either by the Susquehanna and Tide-water Canal Companies or their lessee.

But whether they are made or not, it will be the duty of the Legislature, to provide for the protection of the State's interest in the mortgages, which it holds against these canals, either by foreclosure or re-entry.

As the law now stands in this regard, it is considered doubtful whether the treasury officers or the Board of Public Works have any authority, without further legislation, to compel either the canal companies or their lessee to make a settlement of these mortgages, or the arrearages due thereunder.

In this connection it is proper to state that the claim which the State held against the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company for debenture scrip, amounting to one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and which had been considered of no value, has been settled upon the payment of forty-five thousand dollars.

THE STATE DEBT.

The debt of the State, on the 30th day of September, 1887, is shown by statement J, to be $10,960,535.56. The State holds stocks and bonds on which interest or dividends are paid, amounting to the sum of $5,299,301.60. Deduct these and there remains as the net debt of the State, 30th September, 1887, the sum of $5,661,233.96. The net debt of the State, on the 30th day of September, 1886, was $6,113,159.68; which shows a total reduction in the debt during the fiscal year 1887, of the sum of $451,925.72.

Before the meeting of the next Legislature the sterling debt of the State, amounting to $4,001,111.11, will fall due and mature. No special tax has ever been laid for the redemption of this debt, and, therefore, there is no sinking fund for its payment.

This debt was created in the year 1838, for the purpose of raising money to enable the State to aid in the construction of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.

The interest which the State has to-day in the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and in the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, represents the sterling debt and furnishes ample security to the creditors, to whom this debt is due, without imposing any tax to provide a sinking fund for its ultimate payment.

The State has in the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company and its Washington Branch Railroad, stock amounting at its face value to $1,518,615.70.

This stock pays annually to the State dividends amounting to the sum of $113,116.96.

The interests of the State are identified with this work, and the property interest which Maryland has in this road should be retained.

Holding these views, there is but one thing for the State to do in relation to the maturing sterling debt, and that is to have it refunded.

This can best be done by exchange. We have successfully exchanged, over eighteen hundred thousand dollars, of the debt of the State, in the past eighteen months, at three per cent. interest per annum, thereby saving annually, over fifty-four thousand dollars a year in interest.

We receive in interest from the State's investments in the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, annually, a sum almost sufficient, to pay the interest on a four million loan, bearing only three per cent. per annum.

While it may not be an easy task at this moment of time, to exchange a five per cent. bond and issue instead, a bond bearing only three per cent. interest per annum, yet, within the next year money may be more plentiful; and now that the precedent has been set to the amount of nearly two millions of dollars, it might not be a difficult task to double that sum. The English capitalists, who hold a large portion of this debt, are accustomed to low rates of interest.

A bond of the State bearing interest at the rate of three and a quarter per cent. per annum, free from taxes, would to-day bring a premium, so that we need not hesitate, to provide for the exchange of this debt in the manner I have indicated, and thus secure a saving to the treasury in interest, of some seventy-five or one hundred thousand dollars annually.

REDUCTION OF STATE TAXES.

In my first annual report of the fiscal affairs of the State, sent to the Governor on the 5th day of January, 1885, I not only promised a reduction of the State debt but also a reduction in State taxes.

Although three years only have passed since then, I am now prepared to make such an exhibit, of the condition of the treasury, as will allow a reduction in the tax rate.

THE EXHIBIT.

During the past three years, the treasury officers have called in and paid all the Maryland Hospital and Deaf and Dumb Bonds, authorized by the Acts of Assembly of 1872, Chap. 236, 1874, Chap. 42, and 1876, Chap. 263, amounting to the sum of $590,000.00.

These bonds although in the sinking funds, are now practically redeemed and it only requires Legislative direction, to cancel them, and thereby take off the tax of one and one-half cents in the one hundred dollars, imposed by the laws creating these several loans.

The remaining Deaf and Dumb Loan authorized by the Act of 1870, Chap. 422, of $100,000.00 has been refunded.

After the cancellation of the Maryland Hospital and Deaf and Dumb Bonds now in the sinking fund, there will remain available bonds of the State in the sinking fund, for the redemption of the Treasury Relief Loan, to the amount of $331,317.45. A transfer of the Baltimore & Ohio Bonds amounting to $366,000.00 (that are in the sinking funds for the redemption of the Maryland Hospital and Deaf and Dumb Loans, the greater part of which, as I have shown, are already redeemed, and the balance refunded) to the credit of the sinking fund for the redemption of the Treasury Relief Loan would make a sinking fund of $691,000.00.

The Treasury Relief Loan becomes redeemable on the first day of July, 1888. The Baltimore & Ohio Bonds also fall due on that day.

It has been the intention of the treasury officers to take the proceeds of the Baltimore & Ohio Bonds, and apply them to the payment of the Treasury Relief Loan. There are already $59,000.00 of the bonds of this loan in the sinking funds.

It would only require $75,000.00, in addition to the Baltimore & Ohio Bonds, without touching the State bonds in the sinking fund to the credit of this loan to enable the treasury officers any time after the first day of July, 1888, when the proceeds of the Baltimore & Ohio bonds should be in hand, to pay off the balance of the Treasury Relief Loan now outstanding, amounting to the sum of $441,000.00. When this shall be done there can be a reduction of one and one-half cents more in the tax rate.

Should you determine to cancel the Maryland Hospital and Deaf and Dumb Bonds now in the sinking funds, and transfer the Baltimore & Ohio Bonds to the credit of the sinking funds, for the Treasury Relief Loan, you will be enabled, to make a total reduction of three cents in the rate of State taxes for the year 1888, leaving the tax of one-quarter of one cent, for the Exchange Loan of 1886, the tax of five and one-half cents for the Defence Redemption Loan and the tax of ten cents for schools, and making a total tax of fifteen and three-quarters of a cent on the one hundred dollars, the lowest rate of taxation for Maryland in a period of twenty-five years.

In my report to the Executive a year ago, upon the fiscal affairs of our State, in presenting the question of reduction of State taxes, I stated my views, which are so applicable to the case here presented that I will repeat them. I said :

“If this reduction is made as it should and I believe “will be, it will necessarily lessen the revenues arising “from loan taxes and the increment from investments “where those investments consist of the cancelled “bonds, the annual increase of the sinking funds will “be correspondingly reduced, and will therefore defer “the time when the whole debt tax can be abolished. “Yet I think it is the course which justice to the taxpay- “ers and the law creating the loans, authorize and con- “firm. Holding these views, I shall recommend to the “next Legislature, a reduction in the present tax rate, “such reduction to be based upon the amount of taxes “applicable to any loan, that is then due, the entire “bonds of which or their equivalent, shall by that “time be in the sinking fund.”

Since then nothing has occurred to change my views in relation to this question of tax reduction, and I am unable to discover any other course, which can be pursued with justice to the taxpayers and to the property of this State, than to take the tax off just as soon as the necessity which required its creation, has ceased to exist.

It is proper, however, to add that the question of making some provision for the protection of the State's interest in the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, now engaging public attention, may result in your Honorable bodies directing the treasury officials to purchase the Bonds issued under the Act of 1878, amounting to $500,000.00, for the sinking funds. In that event, the Baltimore & Ohio bonds would be probably needed, to enable these officers to carry out your directions in relation to this work. The time, therefore, for the reduction in the tax rate, so far as the Treasury Relief Loan is concerned, must in a great measure depend upon the demands on the treasury, which, in this connection, may be made at your hands.

TAXABLE BASIS.

Statement K, gives the amount of the assessed value of property in the State on the 30th September, 1887, to be $485,839,772, and shows an increase of $9,010,161, since the 30th day of September, 1886.

But with all this increase in the taxable basis, the assessment in Baltimore City is over two millions short of its assessment in 1877, and the assessment in the whole State shows only an increase in the past ten years of a fraction over seven millions of dollars.

This cannot be all the increase of wealth in Maryland during this period. I believe that Baltimore county alone, upon a reassessment of property, would show an increase of twice that sum: and it is but fair to the present taxpaying property, that there should be a new assessment of the entire property of the State, and it is your province, by suitable legislation, to give directions thereto. This will, doubtless, be one of the most important duties which you will be called to perform during the present session.

LICENSES TO TRADE.

RECEIPTS.

Table No. 1 gives the receipts, among others, of the clerks of courts from licenses, &c.

By this it appears that the traders in Baltimore city, are not so prosperous as formerly, or that they are decreasing in number, neither of which am I willing to believe, although the figures in the table would indicate the one or the other.

In 1885 the receipts from traders' licenses in Baltimore city amounted to $127,965.99, while in 1887 the receipts were only $122,881.76; a falling off of over $5,000.00.

The Legislature on the last night of the session in 1886, while amending the hawkers and pedlers license law of the State, enacted a law (chap. 507) whereby all traders licenses run a year from date of issue, and I think that this law, has something to do, with the falling off in the receipts from licenses in Baltimore city.

The old way requiring all traders licenses to be renewed, on or before, the first day of May, was a good one for the State, and it is believed that the change in the law has not improved, but on the contrary occasions loss to the treasury. I therefore recommend that chap. 507, of the Acts of 1886, be so far amended as to require all traders' licenses to expire on the first day of May, following the day upon which they are issued.

RAILROAD TAXATION.

Table No. 5 gives the receipts into the treasury for the fiscal year 1887, from tax on gross receipts of railroad companies to be $52,433.23.

There has been a gradual improvement in the receipts from railroad companies.

In 1883 the tax paid amounted to.....	$43,364	46
" 1884 " " " "	45	824 70
" 1885 " " " "	46,489	76
" 1886 " " " "	47,261	96

and showing an increase of over $5,000.00 for the fiscal year 1887, when compared with the fiscal year 1886, and an increase of nearly $10,000.00 when compared with the year 1883.

RECEIPTS FROM INCORPORATED INSTITUTIONS.

The assessment of the stock of corporations, as made by the State Tax Commissioner, shows an increase of upwards of eight millions of dollars over that of 1885. and the revenue accruing from such assessments for this year is larger by upwards of ten thousand dollars. than it was in the former year.

This is largely due to the indefatigable industry of that officer.

TOBACCO INSPECTIONS.

The gross receipts of the warehouses during the fiscal year 1887 amounted to the sum of $84,186.05, and the disbursements for same period were $76,134.41.

By this it will appear that the net earnings during the year amounted to $8,051.64.

The salaries of the inspectors are paid out of the State treasury, and amount to $9,000. The system, therefore, was a tax upon the State to the amount of $948.36, besides $448.11 paid for ground rent, and some five hundred dollars more for insurance on the warehouses.

Some of the warehouses are self-sustaining. Nos. 3 and 5 pay all expenses, including the inspector's salary—No. 3 paying a surplus of $5,900.08, which, after deducting the salary for the inspector, leaves the sum of $4,100.08 in the State treasury.

The whole system of inspection, if it is to be continued, should be placed in charge of one man, with as many deputies as there are warehouses. A force of laborers and screwmen could be employed to do the work required without being assigned to any particular warehouse. A large portion of the expense attending inspection would thus be saved, and the State could realize, under good management, after paying every expense connected with the system, considerable revenue.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOL TAX.

The receipts on account of the Public School Tax, for the year 1887, amounted to $524,110.36.

The disbursements for the period amounted to $509,564.77. The levy for the year was $485,839.76. The average disbursements on this account, for the past four years, have been at the rate of $505,618.06, a year.

The average amount of levy a year, for the four years just past, was $476,428.68.

The difference between the levy and the disbursements, was made up from the arrearages, due on account of the Public School Tax for other years. As there remains due and uncollected school taxes for the past four years, to the amount of $262,308.37, it will thus be seen, that to enable the treasury officers to make the payments, which they have made on this account, there have been paid into the treasury, on account of Public School Tax arrearages, and which were due prior to that time, a fraction less, than a half a million of dollars.

A GLANCE AT THE PAST.

As my official relations to this department are drawing to a close, and this being my final report of the fiscal affairs of the State, a brief review of the work done during my incumbency of the office of Comptroller will not, I hope, be considered out of place.

In making this review, I do not propose to go out of my way to make comparisons with other administrations of the office of Comptroller, except so far as may be necessary to show what progress or improvement has been made; nor shall I attempt to give more than a plain statement of the work which has been done, and of what has been accomplished under my administration.

When I entered office on the 22d day of January, 1884, I found a sinking fund of $411,209.18 in bonds, and the sum of $13,858.66 in cash, standing to the credit of the sinking funds, and which were distributed as follows, to wit:

To the General Sinking Fund account	$191,190 48
For the redemption of the Treasury Relief Loan.....	233,877 36

And making a total Sinking Fund in bonds and cash of. . . $425,067 84

This was all the sinking fund the State had at that time. The Maryland Defence Loan of $3,326,750.66 had run for fifteen years, and the tax of five and a-half cents had been collected as authorized by Chap. 235 of the Act of 1868, for the purpose of paying the interest and creating a sinking fund with which to pay the principal at maturity. No sinking fund had, however, been created,~ The money arising from the tax had been otherwise appropriated by the Legislature. The debt had been and was being reissued when I entered office to the amount of three millions of dollars.

There were the Deaf and Dumb Loans, amounting to $225,000.00, one of them had been running since 1870, and the other since 1874, as well as the Maryland Hospital Loans, amounting to $465,000.00, one of them had been running since 1872, and the other since 1876, with a total tax on these various loans of one and three-quarters cents on the one hundred dollars, for the purpose of raising the necessary funds for the payment of interest on these debts, and to create a sinking fund for the payment of the principal within fifteen years from the date of their issue, but no sinking fund whatever had been provided for them. Indeed, the only debt of the State that had a sinking fund provided for it as required by the constitution and the laws creating the various loans of the State, was the Treasury Relief Loan of $500,000.00.

Such was the condition of Maryland's finances when I was called by the people, to assume the duties of Comptroller of the treasury of Maryland.

While hitherto a sinking fund for only a half a million of dollars had been maintained, I had promised the people to maintain a sinking fund for the entire State debt, for which special taxes were provided, amounting to the large sum of four millions one hundred and ninety thousand dollars.

It was stated upon every hand that this could not be done—that I had promised too much—that I would find it impossible without an increase of taxation, to maintain the sinking funds for the various loans of the State, as required by the constitution.

Under such circumstances as these I began my official tenure as Comptroller, and fortunate indeed was it for me, that my predecessor left me a good balance to begin with amounting to the sum of $412,306.25, after deducting the money in the treasury for the redemption of the old defence loan.

There was another circumstance which aided me considerably at this time : the receipts of the treasury during my first year in office were far above what had been the average receipts for some preceding years. This was occasioned in a great measure by the collection of arrearages due from collectors and other receivers of public moneys, so that by the end of my first year, I was able to report a marked improvement in the treasury receipts, and to speak with confidence of my ability to not only fulfil the promise which I had made in relation to the sinking funds of the State, but also to restore and maintain the sinking fund of every existing loan, to reduce the State debt at the rate of three hundred thousand dollars a year, and to enable the Legislature in the near future to reduce the rate of State taxes.

How these promises have been kept, let the record of the three years which have passed since then, bear testimony.

THE RECORD.

The record has already been written, and is contained within the compass of this and the three preceding reports, a brief summary will not I hope be out of place, to show the leading features of the work which has been performed. It may be thus determined, whether I have followed the path which I marked out or not. Let us begin with the sinking funds and see how they have been kept.

During the four fiscal years just passed there was

Making the total amount of cash invested on account of the sinking funds from 1st July, 1884, to the close of the fiscal year 1887, of ...	$1,421,779 11

By this it will appear, that we have an investment in cash on these accounts, in excess of the sum received and required by law to be invested. This statement presents a very satisfactory exhibit.

It shows that the ordinary receipts of the treasury have been sufficient during the past four years, not only to defray all of the ordinary expenses of our State government, pay the interest on $6,770,535.56, of the debt of the State, for which there are no special taxes provided, but also to add to the sinking funds for the payment of the bonded indebtedness of the State, where special taxes are provided, the sum of $165,433.29, without the aid of one cent derived from direct taxation.

Nor is this all. During this period there have been disbursements made in the building of two steamers, two sail boats and other expenses, on account of the oyster service in excess of the receipts from that source, to the amount of $110,242.47. There also has been paid more than $20,000 towards the enlargement of the State House. Nevertheless, at the close of the fiscal year 1887, we had a balance in the treasury, with every sinking fund full, of nearly seven hundred thousand dollars.

The face value of the bonds and securities purchased for the sinking funds, amount to $1,367,006.72.

The difference between the amount of money expended in the purchase of bonds, and the amount of bonds in the sinking funds, to wit, the sum of $54,772.39, is the amount of the premiums paid for the securities.

While the sinking funds have been maintained during the period named, there has been also, as a natural sequence, a satisfactory

REDUCTION IN THE NET DEBT

Of the State as will appear, by the following statement :

The net debt of State 30th September, 1883.....	$7,285,891	57
“ “ “ 1887.....	5,661,233	96
Total reduction in 4 years	$1,624,657	61

The debt of the State has been reduced over one and one-half millions of dollars since I entered office. The entire bonds of three separate loans, representing a tax of one and one-half cents in the tax rate, are in the sinking funds and practically redeemed.

And should you transfer the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad's bonds, to the credit of the sinking fund for the redemption of the Treasury Relief Loan, in the manner I have indicated, there will be an available sinking fund for this debt, of $697,317.45. This is $256,-317.45, more than is necessary for the redemption of the balance of the Treasury Relief Loan now outstanding. It must therefore be evident to every reflecting mind, that the time for tax reduction is now at hand.

But I will say no more. I have called your attention to the leading features contained in the appendix to this report, and made such comment thereon as to me it seemed expedient and proper, and I have endeavored to demonstrate to you the feasibility of reducing the debt taxes, at least one and one-half cents, in the tax rate.

You have full knowledge, however, of the conditions under which the people of our State to-day labor, and appreciate as fully as I do the importance of reducing taxation in the State, as well as in the nation, in order to give the relief which is needed.

I submit the questions herein presented to your judgment, without further comment.

With this record, which certainly more than fulfils every promise which I have made in connection with my tenure as Comptroller, I feel that I can retire from the station to which I was called four years ago by a generous people, with the consciousness of having rendered some service to my State. I would have been willing to have continued the work of tax reduction, by refunding the sterling debt held abroad, at the low rate of interest which the credit of the State now assures, yet, the gentleman, into whose hands these duties have fallen, is not only worthy of the honor, but whose large business experience justifies me in making the prediction, that the finances of the State will not suffer in his hands.

This excellent exhibit which I am able to make of the fiscal affairs of our State, is in a great measure owing to the good judgment and financial ability of my associate in the treasury department, as well as to the efficiency and promptness of the gentlemen, who have held positions under me, in the office of Comptroller, and it gives me great pleasure to accord their due to them in this public manner.

Very respectfully. your obedient servant,

J. FRANK TURNER,

Comptroller.
